

HOW NOT TO GET LOST IN THE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

Where to find E-Information Resources and how to get in there

WHAT ARE ELECTRONIC INFORMATION RESOURCES?

Electronic Information Resources (EIR) are professional resources for science, research and study.

The databases may be used by students and staff exclusively for their study and research purposes.

WHERE TO FIND EIR?

You can find them on the University Library website by clicking on the Catalogues and Resources section - in the second column called Electronic Information Resources.

HOW ARE THEY DIVIDED?

By discipline/alphabetically

- licensed

- accessible only from the IP address of university
- login via remote access required

- freely available

- offers high quality freely available resources
- also available outside the University IP address

If remote access is functional, when you click on the licensed database, it will show you a login form where you enter your email in the form: ...@upjs.sk

STUDENT:

aisID@upjs.sk,

EMPLOYEE:

name.surname@upjs.sk

and the password you created for the wifi and the proxy server.

TRIAL ACCESS

-- can only be used for a limited time. For these, it is also necessary to have remote access setup.

SCIENTOMETRIC DATABASES

-- located within licensed databases
- focus on scientific publications and use the results of analyses of journals, publications and citations to evaluate science.

SUMMON

- is central search engine that allows us to search in one place in all licensed resources available at the University Library.
